Jul 26, 2020 Here is a list of the plugins available (some have multiple variants, such as the WaveEditor, WaveStyle plugins. . . .
../drivers/audio/lynxstudio/lynxstudio_win32_version-9. Editor's Notes:... Instead of deleting the /devices folder, replace the working v10 folder with the v9 folder and replace "v10" in this line: 30 F:
nt\drivers\audio\licenses\firmwares\windows\lynxstudio\V10\lynxstudio_win32_v10_version-9 with 30 F: nt\drivers\audio\licenses\firmwares\windows\lynxstudio\V9\lynxstudio_win32_v9_version-9 Note: This is all my doing. Did you install both v9 and v10 of the driver, or just the v9? The v10 version doesn't appear to work, but the v9 does. A: Looks like you installed version 9 of the Driver, but v10 of the SOUNDGRID Studio. I had the same problem on a Windows 10 machine, the only work around I found was to install the ASIO4ALL 2.9.0 and the plugin v9 of the StudioRack If you try to load the Plugin v10 of the StudioRack you'll have the same problem. A: I ended up fixing the problem by deleting the folder F:
nt\drivers\audio\licenses\firmwares\windows\lynxstudio, manually deleting the.lnk files and renaming the folder F:
nt\drivers\audio\licenses\firmwares\windows\lynxstudio\V9 to F: nt\drivers\audio\licenses\firmwares\windows\lynxstudio\V10.
Then restarting my machine and verifying that I was no longer having any problems with plug-ins that were using a version of the ASIO driver not present on my machine. Apparently, the Windows 10 service to update the driver is buggy and it would not recognize that it needed to be updated. Removing the folder and then renaming it back restored the
